A highly efficient and general method for the preparation of aryl fluorides via olefin fluorination. A highly efficient and general method for the preparation of aryl fluorides was developed, in which the base-promoted addition of the fluorine anion to the corresponding aryl iodide and chloro- and bromoarenes proceeded smoothly in yields of 43-99% under mild conditions. The methodology showed substantial tolerance to a number of structurally diverse functional groups, and was effective for various aryl iodides and aryl chlorides. Preliminary mechanistic studies suggested that olefin fluorination might proceed through an SN2 nucleophilic aromatic substitution pathway, where the aryl halide is firstly generated from the corresponding aryl iodide by halogen atom transfer.MIDDLEBORO >> A Middleboro man who was 04aeff104c
